

UTComp Licensee: TSP Environmental

TSP Environmental is a diversified environmental services company out of Michigan. Since 2007, TSP has been determined to provide professional, high-quality environmental contracting work. Over the years their services have expanded to include non-destructive examination of aboveground storage tanks and piping systems. Over the past decade, the one request they could not answer was “can you inspect fiberglass tanks”. This question kept coming up over and over. When they found out about UTComp, they signed up immediately and it has been a very worthwhile endeavor.

One of the biggest challenges that they championed was to perform visual and ultrasonic thickness testing of process piping from a man basket suspended by a large crane in a manufacturing plant. The inspection, as well as planning and coordinating with all departments from safety to security, was intensive but successful.

Based on observations on-site, and experience with FRP tanks, they believe that UltraAnalytix™ should have a greater priority than steel tank inspections. The reason for this is the absence of FRP tank and piping inspections has left many owners with tanks believing they only have a few years of operational life left. To know for sure would provide the ability to better plan for replacement. Hence the higher priority.

With various technical disciplines, and expertise, these certified NDT Inspectors can provide similar services that are generally sought from large consulting companies.

TSP plans to continue its efforts in expanding in the tank and piping inspection industry. The projected FRP industry growth and increasing consumer awareness from additional marketing efforts will result in an increase in their service territory and additional states.

This team of contracting engineers can take on the challenges that most contractors are not equipped to handle. Under the direction of a licensed professional engineer with 35 years of experience, they provide professional, high-quality technical services to clients on a contract to contract basis.

If you want FRP asset peace of mind, contact the exceptional team of TSP Environmental for an UltraAnalytix™ inspection.
